Hokkaido University is launching a new Graduate School of Global Food Resources, which will admit its first students in April 2017. This new graduate school will promote new models of multidisciplinary, multinational, team-based education and research, and will build on Hokkaido University's long history of leadership in agricultural sciences.

In this forum, we will share our evolving vision and strategy for the new graduate school, solicit feedback from our peers, and seek ideas for possible future collaborations.

2017年4月に『北海道大学大学院国際食資源学院』を新しく設置する予定です。
この大学院の理念を共有するために、国際食資源学フォーラムを開催します。
