Step Up to LEADERSHIP

by Dale Carnegie Training

Teamwork is an integral part of your research activity regardless the scale of your project. Postdoc and PhD Course researchers are the senior members in your lab and that would put you in a leadership position one way or another. If you know the basics of "How to be a leader", you can practice and brush up your leadership skills while conducting your research activities in your team. Even if you are an independent contributor or stand-alone player, knowing the fundamentals of leadership will make you aware of how to be a good team-player. Dale Carnegie Training has been giving management training for the executives of major corporations around the world for more than 100 years. Don't miss this golden opportunity for you to Step Up to LEADERSHIP.
